

QUAD MARINE RECEIVES FIRST PATENT FOR INNOVATIVE NEW ELECTRIC CATAMARAN

Los Angeles, CA... Quad Marine has just been granted its first patent from the USPTO. The patent covers various elements of the company's Quad 44 electric catamaran and confirms the innovative nature of the design and the utility of its features.

The issued patent also provides protection against the appropriation of Quad Marine's IP (intellectual property) by competitors and strengthens the company's position in the market.

A second patent is being processed by the USPTO which covers additional elements and will provide additional competitive advantages within the marine industry.

Quad Marine's flagship product, the Quad 44, is the Tesla of the marine industry and the culmination of a 10-year development project to create the world's most advanced four-cabin electric cruising catamaran, without the design flaws and compromises of traditional boats.

Quad Marine (www.QuadMarine.com) was founded to design and market a new generation of clean, quiet, and reliable electric watercraft.

The company recently launched a crowdfunding campaign to raise capital for the production of the Quad 44. Full details are available online at www.StartEngine.com/quadmarine.
